The Bikers Prayer

We're many in number but we ride as one
With the pavement beneath and our faces in the sun
With the wind on our backs and our gear all on
We ride in remembrance of those who have passed on
As the engines start up and our rumble grows loud
We ride for our brethren who can no longer be found
The sunglasses we wear are to cover our tears
Remembering those who ride that we've held so dear
So let us ride to make others aware
That the roads that we ride are for all to share
And those who are not with us by our side
May God be your partner on your final ride
